Campus Life

Viking Staff

"Now look you guys; that was due today!"

As editor of the 1974 Viking, I, Debra Millier, wish to acknowledge the efforts of the staff in making the completion of this book possible. I would, also, in behalf of the staff, like to express sincere gratitude to Miss Bobby Woods and her journalism class for assistance provided. I hope the student body enjoys the Viking to the extent which I have enjoyed preparing it.

Sheryl and Debbie check a layout form.

Lee snaps a shot of Jack and Murray as they review some pictures taken earlier.

Debbie makes notes on the staff's copy of layout mats already shipped for production.

Sheryl, Debbie, and Steve check the yearbook dummy for the proper page number for layout mats.

Norse Wind

Checking over page layouts, editor Kathleen Williams reads another issue of the Norse Wind for printing.

Circulation manager Linda Pritchett gets the Norse Wind out for students to catch up on the latest campus news.

Advertising manager Vicky Beck clips out an advertisement to show a customer

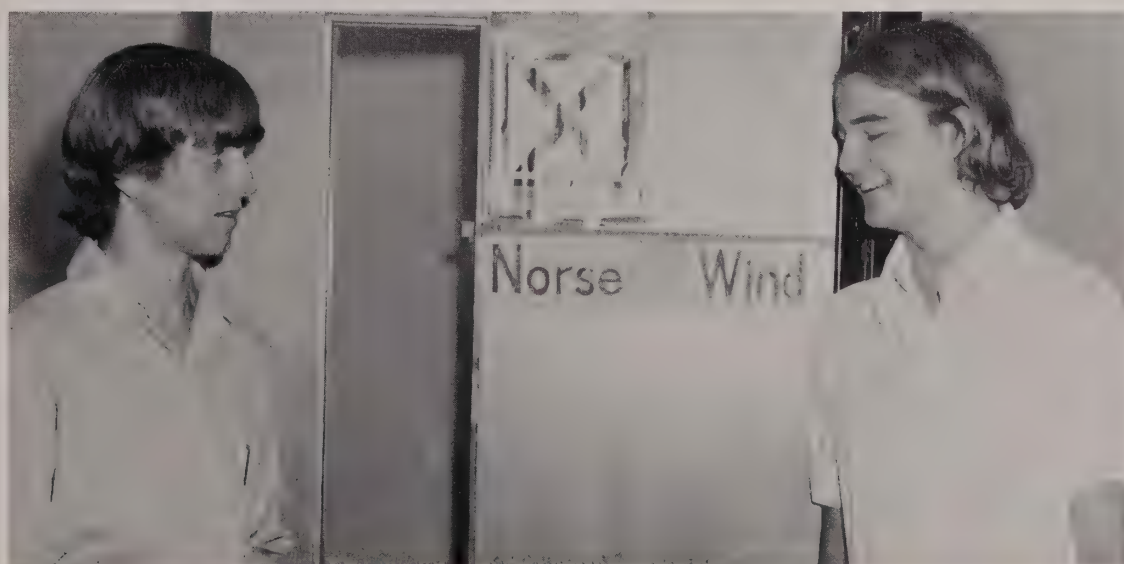

Photographer Larry Hanes gets ready to print another set of pictures for the Norse Wind.

Discussing some sports copy, Norse Wind staffers Steve Wilkins (left), Suzi Garrett and Dave Simpson agree the Golden Norsemen are deserving of more space in the newspaper.

Norse Stars

Drama Department

Anna, played by Debbie Waldron, arrives in Siam and is greeted by the prime minister, Kralahome, played by Joe Reinhart. Litter bearers are Chester Cox, Charles Kimbrough, and Lester Whitney; the interpreter is Joe Sanders. Diane Douthat is in the background with Robert Reavis II.

The king becomes possessive and offers Anna his arm, learning some western etiquette from the British ambassador, played by Jon Durkee.

The Drama Department has presented productions of "Harvey" and "The King and I." Another production, "Music Man," will be the final production. However, a student talent show will be produced to complete the season's activities.

"THE KING AND I"

Terry Holden and Jan Hudgins team up in the love duet, "I Have Dreamed."

A processional, including a fire dancer (Randy White), is interrupted as the prince, played by Marcelo Nichols (in the background on the litter), is told his father is dying.

"HARVEY"

Shirl White, Chairman of the Communications Division and director of "Harvey," begins the modification necessary between current hair styles and those relative to those of the production.

Not visible on Elwood P. Dowd's (Lonnie Jones) knee is Harvey, the 6½ foot, hairbrained rabbit.

Meistersingers

Clark Dugger
Director

The Meistersingers is a select group of sixteen to eighteen singers who are chosen through private audition from the College Chorus of approximately 100 members. Many of these students are music majors and are on vocal scholarships, although this is not a requirement. The Meistersingers perform many times throughout the year for high schools, civic organizations, and various other programs throughout the four state area. The object of this performing organization is to give the outstanding singer the opportunity to perform all types of choral music.

NEO Student Santa Special

Senate Christmas Party

Each year the Student Senate sponsors a Christmas Party for underprivileged children. This year approximately 550 children were adopted by 800 college students. This section is dedicated to those college students participating, with the idea of reflecting some of the enthusiasms and joys received by both the college students and their little partners.

Santa greets one of the young participants.

Santa has delivered an enormous bundle of gifts.

"See how good I am?"

An observer might ask which party is playing with the toys.

"Who are you calling?"

"This plane really flies!"

"Does he really bark?"

"Okay, let's try this bite."

"This train's 'super'!"

"Are you really Santa?"

"Did you really do that, Santa?"

"Let me do that."

"Now where's my horse?"

"Mmmmmmm, good."

Freshman Class

A new welcome is experienced at the beginning of the semester.

The presence of opposition stimulates the participants to greater endeavor and compels them to consider both sides of the question. The real issues are more likely to develop if both sides are represented by carefully prepared advocates. The presence of such opposition motivates greater consideration of the logical adequacy of evidence and reasoning. The rules of debate, furthermore, promote the observance of certain standards of decorum which keep the controversy within bounds and insures to both sides a fair hearing.
